We Aren't Mad At Anyone

We don't know if they still teach kids that foreign policy in this country is made by the people, themselves. It hasn't always been true, and it was hard for kids to understand, but it cleared up a point that diplo-

The trouble with the diplomats is that they get so involved in their techniques they forget their principles. Sometimes they misrepresent the people they are working for-not maliciously but stupidly.

When they make dirty little deals to pull the rug from under someone, they certainly are not carrying out the will of the people. They were not carrying it out when they played footsie with Franco of Spain, for example, or with Tito of Yugoslavia. Much of what has been done in Latin America and the Middle East was contrary to the main current of popular opinion in the United

The American people have no intrigue in them. They do not like the idea of playing both ends against the middle. It is foreign to them to say one thing and mean another. And that is why, when foreign policy is on the up and up, the State Department and the White House reflect the will of the people.

If there were no other reason, partisan politics itself could account for the close relationship; foreign policy is a political asset when it's popular.

BUT THERE also is a feeling expressed through foreign policy when it is truly representative - the good will of the American people.

We think this is the feeling President Eisenhower is trying to carry abroad with him

The good will of the American people has become for all practical purposes the foreign policy of the United States under his personal

We aren't mad at anyone-not even people who say they are mad at us. We feel sorry and sad about the ignorance and malice that make bad will a useful implement for some politicians, but we cannot feel angry about the foolish people they mislead.

There isn't a place on earth where an American who knows how to behave himself could not express friendship and elicit friendship on a person-to-person basis. Gone forever, thanks to two World Wars, is dark fear of the unknown. There are no unknowns for Americans any more. We have seen everybody there is to see and gone everywhere there is to go.

WENDELL WILLKIE, a losing presidential candidate who settled for "One World" as a consolation prize, broke the barrier that made it possible for Americans to believe they disliked what they didn't know. They do not dislike anything per se; they dislike only what threatens them.

It never will get through the heads of some of the Communist conspirators, but Americans do not even dislike Communism, as long as it does not threaten them. They would be happy to settle for a live-and-let-live system, but the conspiratorial politicians at the center of Communism don't dare to think that way. With no bogeyman to fight and fume against, they would be lost.

We aren't mad at anyone . . .

That's the message President Eisenhower Is carrying. It's authentic. No prime minister, no foreign minister, can say, "Yes, but how do we know your people feel the same way?"

When an American president says his country isn't mad at anyone, he is talking for all its citizens. That's more than can be said about the self-designated spokesmen who say their country is mad at everyone.

H. A. W. For Short, Not For Long

There were years away back there in the aeon of the New Deal when scarcely a newspaper went to press without a story about Henry Agard Wallace - H.A.W. for short.

No man of his day was a more recognizable symbol of the try-anything movement that had washed up on the low fill that keeps Washington from being flooded by the Potomac. Mr. Wallace had a range of imagination that encompassed voters from the boomerang-throwing minority to corn hybridizers -from dirt farmers to New York City beatniks who then were scurrying from pillar to post under other names. He beat the Russians

As secretary of agriculture, as vice president of the United States, as secretary of commerce and finally, in 1948, as candidate for president on the Progressive party ticket, Henry Wallace stood firm in his unorthodoxy. That is what made him a political symbol identifiable at sight.

No one could be sure about the Southerners under the New Deal tent-whether they stood there to keep dry, or because they belonged to the lodge. But one of them, James F. Byrnes, ended up at the top of the State Department under Harry Truman, and he called the turn on Wallace.

Commenting to Truman on a speech Wallace had made as secretary of commerce. cutting the ground from under Byrnes while he was negotiating peace treaties in Paris, Byrnes snapped:

"If it is not completely clear in your own mind that Mr. Wallace should be asked to refrain from criticizing the foreign policy of the United States while he is a member of your Cabinet, I must ask you to accept my resignation immediately."

Harold Ickes couldn't have said it more

Truman asked for Wallace's resignation.

That was late in 1946. In December 1947, Wallace left the Democratic party. He said he would run for president in 1948 on a third party platform of peace and abundance for all. He did run, polling 1,157,172 votes, making headlines from coast to coast, being himself - and being characteristically unorthodox. He then dropped out of sight.

He is back. He helped to sponsor a Democratic fund-raising dinner honoring Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. It is by all odds the biggest news since whatshisname from Oregon did whatever it was he did that made him politically newsworthy. Let's see now, what was it that whatshisname did? He left the Republican party: that was it. Or was it the Demo-

Still Going Up

The cost of traffic carelessness in Columbiana County has mounted for the first nine months of 1959, compared with the similar period for last year.

A report compiled by the Ohio Department of Highway Safety shows 24 dead, 582 injured and property damage totaling $616 .-420, compared with 16 dead, 559 injured and property damage of $568,790 in the ninemonth period of last year.

The present county traffic toll stands at 25 - a statistical 25 per cent above the 20 deaths at this time in 1958.

Statistics cannot describe the pain and sorrow resulting from negligence behind the wheel. But the figures can serve as a factual warning that no one who drives a car, rides in a car or walks near a street or highway is immune from the danger of death or injury.

You still have time to be a statistic in '59. But a little more patience and a little less speed can prevent it.

We have banana week, umbrella week, bekind-to-parakeets week; so many "weeks" that they overlap. But we can spare just Why has no one observed that Thanksgiving is the one and the only day celebrated in America that all the world could share?

Forlorn and hopeless is that human of any race, creed or color who has not one thing for which to be thankful. A day of universal thanksgiving could bring all peoples closer together than any world institution yet con-

None of our other holidays meets the universal test. British cousins of the Pilgrim founders of Thanksgiving might need buttering up a bit. Certainly the Fourth of July is out. Our own nation does not agree on Memorial Day. Three-fourths of humanity could not accept Christmas, not even New Year's.

For convenience, the world agrees that this is 1959, yet only one man in four can soulfully say "this year of our Lord, 1959." For it is not the year of every man's Lord, nor is it 1959 to all men.

of Jimmy Hoffa in Judge Dickinson

They hope to prove that the pro-

"misused" union funds. There is no evidence of any theft. Fact is that the Treasury Department has closed its investigation of Hoffa.

When Jimmy Hoffa was asked why he had shifted hundreds of thousands of dollars of his union's money to a bank doing business with special friends of his, h e snapped: "Because I wanted to." That's par for Jimmy's course. Now the Justice Department wants to know why he wanted

- especially since his local here lost almost $100,000 through such shifts.

These probes are leading the federal agents from Detroit banks to Indianapolis, Ind., Orlando, Fla., and New York, N.Y.

Let's go the route. This is the high road which insiders believe will lead to Hoffa's ouster - and a new Teamsters president by the Teamsters Western Confer-Back in 1956, a friend of Jim-

ON OCT. 29, 1956, a check arrived from the Detroit Truck Drivers, Local 299. It was for $50,000. It was for deposit in the New York bank, interest free.

This was fine for the bank. But what about the Teamsters money which could have been drawing at least 3 per cent interest?

The friend who arranged the conference was one Benjamin Dranow. He had an account, according to the court - appointed Monitors, with this Manhattan bank, located in the heart of the men's clothing district.

From time to time his account revealed he was a little tight for money. A few months later Dranow took over a Minneapolis department store - and was helped along by a million dollars borrowed from two Teamsters pension funds virtually controlled by Hoffa.

There is on the record a similar shift of funds from the Detroit local's treasury to the Fidelity Bank and Trust Co. of Indianapolis. This was for $125,000. Also good for the bank. But also interest free. What the federals are really probing hard now is the ill-famed Sun Valley project in Florida. Many a Teamster hoped to build a home on a lot there bought from the development. There are many such drivers here who put their money into their dreams.

What they didn't know was that their dreams were under water. Not only did Sun Valley not have roads; it did not have dry ground in some areas. Yet this was the development which Hoffa, as described in Senate committee testimony, backed by putting a $500,000 chunk of Detroit Teamsters' dough interest free in the Now there isn't even water in some Teamsters' dreams.

This project was run by Hoffa's friend, Henry Lower. He was the intermediary with the bank. Senate probers charge Lower drew off half that bank loan - a quarter of a million dollars - for other enterprises in Detroit.

On all this, the Monitors now will begin taking depositions from "wanted to," is conduct unbecombankers and others. This is the ing an officer. And the Monitors hope to win. After the 35 depositions are in,

This means that Judge Letts would order Hoffa's removal. There would then be a receiver appointed for the months between Hoffa's removal - if the judge so rules - and the next Teamsters national convention.

All sides agree that the logical successor would be fourth vice president Einar Mohn. He has run the national headquarters. He is respected.

FAIR IS FAIR. The Treasury Department did not find any cause He is the only man whose infor action against him. This fluence disturbs Hoffa. And he is should be reported. However, the the man who can lead the Team-Monitors says that such use of sters back into the AFL-CIO and union funds, merely because Hoffa end the era of turbulence.

But it probably is laced with more home-grown humor than employment, say, in a steel plant.

Civil Service Commission studies indicate the level of efficiency of the federal worker is equal to that of employes of most large corporatons and has been going up in recent years at a comparable rate.

Some of this efficiency may be attributed to the widespread use of "numbers," a practice that has infiltrated from the military services. A recent government personnel circular, for instance, suggests that time could be saved by utilizing a 13-point code for excuses.

A COMPLAINT from a supervisor or a coworker thus could be handled merely by signaling the appropriate number from this list f standard answers:

1. That's the way we've always done it.

2. I didn't know you were in a hurry for it.

3. That's not in my department No one told me to go ahead. 5. I'm waiting for an okay. 6. How did I know this was dif-

THE REPORT points out that the speed advantage of the auto over a horse disappears in rush hours when cars must creep. It notes that a luxury horse, fully equipped, would cost the taxpayer only about $1,000, and the depreciation would be slight - at east for the first 10 years.

called for good faith on the part of Nikita Khrushchev but didn't define it in specific terms. Here is how Mr. Eisenhower put it: "I shall try to convey to everyfirst requirement for mutual disarmament is mutual verficiation." The phrase "mutual verification" could mean a mutual obligation to tell the truth. It could mean that truth must be clearly established on controversial subjects before there can be mutual agreement. Whatever specific meaning the President had in mind, it will be interpreted widely as a declaration that there can be no progress toward mutual disarmament without mutual trust.

MR. EISENHOWER devoted some of his speech to the task of countering the Soviet propaganda in Asia and Europe which constantly tells the peoples of the world that the United States pursues only "materialistic goals" and puts "war above peace.

The mere fact that the President referred to such unjust descriptions of American purposes reveals that he is fully conscious of the very misrepresentations carried on by the Soviets which make mutual trust difficult of attainment

The President pointedly emphasized America's fundamental "belief in a creator who has endowed all men with inalienable rights, including life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Another implicit comment was contained in the following paragraph later on in the President's trying to convey is that the Communists prate about peace and friendship and they want Americans to accept "peaceful co-exist-ence" as a sort of validation of the injustices committed behind the Iron Curtain.

Union Charge 'Plain Bunk,' Patton States

CLEVELAND (AP)-The president of Republic Steel Corp. today described as "just plain bunk" the charges that steel companies are trying to take away employe seniority and destroy the United Steelworkers Union.

Thomas F. Patton made the statement in the first of a new series of radio broadcasts on is sues involved in the steel strike. The broadcasts are heard here, in Canton, Massillon, Warren, Youngstown, Buffalo and Gadsden,

"The union leaders have been trying to sell employes a bill of goods in accusing the companies of trying to take away an employe's seniority and destroy the union," Patton said. Referring to his company's offer, now before the union, he added:

"The union shop provision re mains unchanged, the dues checkoff system remains unchanged the grievance procedure remains unchanged, and the United Steelworkers Union remains as the sole bargaining agent for those employes it represents."

Commenting on the possibility of the union going on strike again at the end of the injunction per iod Jan. 26, Patton said:

"I don't think the men in the mills wanted a strike in the first place and I don't think they will want to go back on strike.'

Patton said the contract signed with the union by Kaiser Steel 'definitely would be inflationary to the other companies."

THE STEEL COMPANIES OFFER:

Almost $1,100 worth of increased wages and benefits - in A three year, strike-free agreement; and

A practical way to settle the "local working conditions" dispute

What the package includes

A three year package providing improved benefits in the first year and higher wages in the second and third years. This would cost more than 30 cents per hour worked, without provision for possible cost-of-living increases, and would accumulate to $1,081 for the average steelworker over the period. It includes:

Insurance

- · Company-paid life insurance on a generally in-
- Company-paid sickness and accident benefits—also on an increased scale.
- Consequent reduction in employee contribution to insurance program and a net increase in take-home
- Improvements in insurance protection in event of lay-off.

Pensions

- Increased pensions for employees retiring after January 1, 1960, including:
- An increase of at least $12 per month for employees retiring on minimum pensions with 35 or more years
- An increase of $5 per month for employees retiring with more than minimum pensions.
- An increase of $10 per month in minimum disability
- Provision for early retirement on full pension under special circumstances.

- Wage increase in the second year, ranging from six to twelve cents per hour, depending on job classifi-
- Another wage increase in the third year, ranging from six to twelve cents per hour.

Cost-of-Living

- Continuation of 17 cents an hour cost-of-living adjustment obtained under previous contract.
- Further provisions for possible cost-of-living

Supplemental Unemployment Benefits

- Increased cash payments by companies into Supplemental Unemployment Benefit fund.
- Restoration of full benefit level at beginning of new agreement.

Seniority

 Strengthened seniority rights in line with certain Union proposals.

Human Relations Research

• A Joint Committee on Human Relations Research to study employment stabilization and many other mutual problems.

Local Working Conditions

 Submission to a Union-Company Committee for solution, and to final arbitration if necessary.

his is the offer which the steel companies made on November 15 and on which the employees may vote early next month if no settlement is negotiated meanwhile.

In declining to accept this offer the union officials demanded a package of wages and benefits which, with cost-of-living provisions, could amount to an inflationary 45 cents per hour.

The Companies' offer amounts to an average annual increase of 2.7 percent in their employment costs. According to Secretary of Labor Mitchell's Fact Finding Report, however, output per man-hour in the steel industry increased at an average annual rate of only 2.6 percent between Clearly this is a fair and generous offer; but it confronts the Companies with a difficult problem-the problem of meeting their increased employment cost without reducing their ability to compete both with low-cost foreign made steel and with substitute materials produced here at home.

In meeting this problem they must count on the steelworkers themselves to help earn the additional money going into their pay envelopes by cooperating in the elimination of waste wherever possible. That is what the local working conditions dispute is all about.

A Way to Solve the Local Working Conditions Dispute

As a solution to this dispute, which has been a stumbling block in the negotiations thus far, the Companies have offered to accept the Union's proposal for a joint study committee. But if that step does not result in a mutually satisfactory solution by June 30, 1960, the issue would be turned over to binding arbitration.

They have also expanded the question which would be submitted to the committee, and to arbitration if necessary, by adding the words underlined in the following question. It now reads:

What, if any, changes should be made in the local working conditions provisions of the basic labor agreements to enable the Companies to take reasonable steps to improve efficiency and eliminate waste, with due regard for the welfare of the employees involved, including: the avoidance of undue work burdens; and, to the extent practicable, the retraining and placement on available jobs in the plant, of any employees affected by such steps?"

Meanwhile, subject to a solution of the issue in this way, the Companies would agree that the present local working conditions provisions be retained if the Union in turn would agree that its officers and members will cooperate with management to improve efficiency and eliminate waste.

Companies Strive to Meet Union Objections

Of the contract changes originally proposed by the Companies, all except those generally relating to local working conditions, wildcat strikes and scheduling have now been dropped. Those remaining have been substantially modified in an effort to meet the Union's objections.

Thus the Steel Companies have made every effort to reach a non-inflationary agreement through voluntary collective bargaining.

They know that the outcome of the negotiations between the Steel Companies and the Steelworkers Union is of vital interest to everyone . . . that it can affect the value of your dollar, your standard of living and your future security.

They know that American industry must be able to compete at all times with the growing economic challenge from abroad.

They realize the heavy responsibility that rests upon them in these negotiations and they have sought to meet this responsibility fairly

They believe that the offer presented above accomplishes this purpose.

What do you think?

Eve-Catcher PORTLAND, Ore. - Homemak-

ers who want something a little different in kitchen design without going to great expense needn't despair. The home decorating field has more kitchen design ideas than a magician has rabbits. For instance, a whole lot of individuality can be given a kitchen simply through placement of walls and dividers. While the two-sided pullman kitchen has many merits, building a kitchen in the shape of a triangle is a real eye-catcher. Not only is a triangular-shaped kitchen interesting, but it also opens up this usually small area, giving it a feeling of greater spacousness. Two of the kitchen's walls, the two bearing walls, will be in usual position, but the inner wall, which usually adjoins the family room, will be angled. On the family room side, the angled wall provides an ideal setting for a conversation grouping, refreshment bar, or reading nook.

Much of any kitchen's individuality comes from its cabinet work Since arrangements and color use are somewhat limited in the average-sized kitchen, a great deal depends on cabinet styling, accessories, and wood finish. All three of these used to be pretty standard, and cabinet finish was almost al ways paint. But today, a wide range of choice is offered.

Two former Wellsville athletes have teamed up at Adrian (Mich.) College. Gregg Arbaugh (left), head basketball coach at Adrian, talks to Pick Rolley, who is one of his star cagers.

Rolley scored 19 points in Adrian's 73-66 victory over Ferris Institute in a non-league contest last week. He hit on 50 per cent of his shots from the floor in the first game of the season.

This is Rolley's second year as a regular with the Bulldogs, who compete in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Arbaugh is also in his second year as head cage coach.

Rolley was a standout for three years at Wellsville before graduating in 1958.
